*Activities that constitute supervision:

Direct Individual Supervision:

- Any time students are communicating 1:1 with their primary or secondary supervisor and discussing client-related matters. This can include communication occurring face to face, Skype, telephone, or videoconferencing
- Students shadowing/observing their supervisor running a session/conducting an assessment (this can count as both client contact and supervision)
- When the student’s supervisor observes the student in a session

Indirect Individual Supervision:

- Supervisor reviews any client-related work (e.g., reviewing of student notes, emails to clients, reports, scoring of psychometric assessments)

Group Supervision:

Group Supervision is anytime you, one of the listed supervisors or an endorsed clinical psychologist and board-approved supervisor, and 1 other colleague engage in the following:

- Team meetings that focus on service provision to client/s
- Discussing clinical topics (e.g., evidence-based treatments, advancement in assessments)
- Discussion of cases
